The Hon. William H. Wharton presented his protest against the vote taken this morning, confirming the right of electing Commissioners from either House of Congress.

The protest was as follows:

William H. Wharton, Senator from the County of Brazoria, in accordance with his constitutional privilege so to do, most solemnly protests against the vote which took place this morning in the Senate, allowing members of Congress to be elected Commissioners to locate the seat of government, under the act passed at the present session of Congress. He is satisfied that great corruption and injury will grow out of such a principle. He is, moreover, satisfied that it is totally subversive of the 23d sec. 1st article of the constitution, which says: "no member of either House shall be eligible to any office which may be created during his term of service." The beauty and wisdom of this section of the constitution need not be commented upon—the framers of that instrument, well knowing the weakness and frailties of mankind, endeavored to make it impossible for members of Congress to create offices for the purpose of legislating themselves into office. The present bill provides that there shall be five Commissioners elected to locate the seat of government, with $5 per diem allowance, and a vote of the Senate to-day decided that they might be elected from either House of Congress. Might not the same Congress have passed a bill that there should be fifty Commissioners, with a salary of one thousand or one million dollars per diem, which would embrace all the members of both Houses of Congress, and could any thing but a revolution, on the part of the people, prevent such a law from going into effect? This needs no answer. For a definition of the word office, mentioned in the section of the constitution above quoted, I refer to all compilers of dictionaries, from Johnson to Webster; all of whom define the word office to mean a public charge, or employment, magistracy, agency, &c. &c. Now, if this post of Commissioner, to select a site for the seat of government, does not imply a public charge, employment, magistracy or agency, then your protester professes himself ignorant of the English language. In the opinion of your protestor, it is clearly an office, an important office, such as is contemplated by our constitution; and any other construction is, and must be, totally subversive of one, I had almost said, the most important provision of that instrument, and will be productive of incalculable injury to the country.

WM. H. WHARTON.

Mr. Ellis moved that the election be had viva voce.
