SUBJECT: Record Votes

DATE: March 5, 2007

Journals for the 79th Regular Session indicate that 986 record votes were taken in the Texas House of Representatives. Eighty-two of these votes were roll calls, intended to establish a quorum, meaning 904 were votes on matters before the House that required approval of the membership.

As the table below indicates, the number of record votes taken in the last two regular sessions has increased substantially over previous sessions.

Record Votes by Session
(including Roll Call votes)

Session	Record Votes
72nd Regular Session	573
73rd Regular Session	585
74th Regular Session	600
75th Regular Session	646
76th Regular Session	539
77th Regular Session	649
78th Regular Session	951
79th Regular Session	986

SOURCE: Journals of the Texas House of Representatives, 72nd to 79th Regular Sessions.

Estimates on the time required to tabulate each record vote vary from 30 seconds to several minutes. If we assume that the time required to tabulate each record vote averages one minute, then House members spent an estimated 15 hours casting votes during the 79th Regular Session.

Based on the amount of recorded material in the video archives, the House was in session 403 hours between January 11, 2005 and May 31, 2005. This means 3.7 percent of the time the House was in session was spent on voting.

Texas Legislative Council maintains a database of bill actions in order to display a history on the Internet for each bill filed. This database was used to identify the top 20 floor actions in the Texas House of Representatives that required approval of the membership during the 79th Regular Session. Excluding actions on congratulatory, memorial or concurrent resolutions, the body expressed its intent 6125 times. A list of these actions and the dates on which they occurred is attached.

Using the one-minute estimate for tabulating record votes, 102 hours would have been required to take record votes on all of these actions.

If votes had been required on all 6125 actions decided by the membership, the House would have spent almost 25 percent of its time voting.

During May 2005, 3794 actions in the House required approval of the membership (62 percent of the total). The House was in session 198 hours in May 2005. If each record vote took one minute, then 54 hours would have been required to take record votes on these actions.

God our Father, we stand in desperate need of you today. On our own we lack the wisdom needed to deal justly with the important issues with which we are faced. On behalf of these ladies and gentlemen, I ask that you would bless them with clarity of speech as they offer their thoughts and opinions on what is right and wrong; with acute hearing as they listen and focus on giving others the same respect that they wish to receive; with the knowledge of the truth so they would be able to accurately perceive the world in which they lead, live, and love; with empathy for their brothers and sisters so they could more fully comprehend the effects of the business at hand; with a hunger for justness as they strive to lead our state in a manner that would reflect you grace and mercy; and with Godly wisdom, given only by your providence, that they would be able to set aside the folly of this world and take upon themselves the truest treasure of Solomon.

It is obvious that we are not alone here. We do not desire to be alone. Emmanuel, our God with us. We ask that you would accomplish these things in your power, in your timing, in your will, and because of your name. Amen.

REASON FOR VOTE

This bill has been touted as a way to "streamline" our probation system, the implication being that we have too many probationers. If simply reducing the length of the probationary period a convicted felon can be ordered to serve is "streamlining" the system, then the bill's proponents have succeeded.

The bill prevents a judge from having the discretion to sentence third degree felons to any amount of probation longer than five years. Current law allows the judge to choose any amount of time between two and ten years. The bill's change to the law is foolish and removes the ability of trial judges to appropriately apply sound discretion on a case-by-case basis, corresponding to the seriousness of the offense and the criminal history of the defendant.

There are some third degree felony cases that merit lengthy probationary periods, just as there are infrequent situations where the facts and circumstances of a first degree felony case may warrant a shorter probationary period. Because these matters involve literally infinite variables of facts of the case and criminal backgrounds and circumstances of defendants, Texas has traditionally accorded judges and juries wide latitude to accommodate differing situations to effect justice in each case. Current law already allows judges to sentence defendants to the lower end of probation, but it stands to reason that judges have sentenced probationers to sentences longer than this bill would now allow because they believed that the facts and circumstances warranted supervision of the defendant for a longer period of time. Such decisions are imminently reasonable and may include considerations about the safety of potential victims and the public at large.

A good example of the misinformation regarding this bill is an article in today's Austin American Statesman which reports, "The bill would cut the maximum probation terms from 10 to five years for nonviolent, third-degree felonies. . ." [Emphasis added]. The offenses that would have reduced punishments under this bill include, among others, kidnapping, aggravated assault with serious bodily injury, robbery, and arson — hardly accurately categorized as "nonviolent" felonies.

The criminal justice policy impact statement from the Legislative Budget Board estimates that this bill, if enacted, will result in approximately 49,242 felons being immediately taken off of probation supervision. The potential danger this represents to the public is obvious. All of these probationers were deemed worthy of being supervised for longer than five years, and the judges presiding over their cases have furthermore not seen fit to release them early (which is likewise currently within their discretion to do under current law). Instead, the legislature will simply let them off probation as much as five years early, applying this bill retroactively as well as prospectively. Unbelievable.

There will be unforeseen and serious consequences to victims of crime if this bill is passed by the senate and becomes law. If the senate passes this measure, the governor should veto it.
