DIGEST

Currently, the Texas Department of Human Services estimates that there are approximately 25,000 cases where someone other than a parent is the primary caretaker; 18,000 cases consist of the grandparents as the primary caretakers. Experts have offered several reasons for grandparents raising and helping to raise their grandchildren: increasing drug abuse among parents, teen pregnancy, divorce, a rapid rise in single parent households, mental and physical illness, child abuse and neglect, incarceration, and welfare reform. Most grandparents are older and have limited resources to adequately support their grandchildren. Grandparents and their grandchildren would benefit greatly if policies and programs intended to help traditional parent-child families in times of need could be uniformly extended to grandchildren.

PURPOSE

As proposed, S.B. 1423 sets forth provisions for providing supplemental financial assistance and services to certain grandparents.

This bill does not grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, institution, or agency.
