AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Under the Texas Tax Code, a lessee who holds a leasehold interest in property that it is being leased from a navigation district is exempt from paying property taxes on that leasehold interest if the property being leased is "used as an aid or facility incidental to or useful in the operation or development of port or waterway or in aid of navigation-related commerce." Under current law, a county appraisal district makes its determination regarding the character of the activities in which a lessee engages to determine whether the activities are used in aid of navigation-related commerce, and thus qualify for the property tax exemption. Since the Tax Code does not define "navigation-related commerce," county appraisal districts may apply different standards in determining what meets the definition of "navigation-related commerce." Application of different standards could affect industry and the economic development of a community in one navigation district over another should lessees choose to enter into leases in other navigation districts in other counties that construe "navigation-related commerce" broadly.

S.B. 1315 clarifies several activities that should be interpreted as "navigation-related commerce" by county appraisal districts. If the activity by a lessee is an activity enumerated in this bill, it is prima facie evidence that the activity meets the exemption under the Tax Code. The enumerated list of activities in S.B. 1315 is non-exhaustive. Accordingly, appraisal districts are not limited by the specifically named activities when making their determination of the applicability of this section of the Tax Code.

By making this clarification, S.B. 1315 will create uniformity in definitions across the state thereby promoting equal footing in economic development.

S.B. 1315 amends current law relating to the determination that certain property is used as an aid or facility incidental to or useful in the operation or development of a port or waterway or in aid of navigation-related commerce for purposes of the application of certain ad valorem tax laws.
