AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Under Chapter 61, Election Code, voters are permitted to select an interpreter to communicate with elections officials and translate their ballot. To be eligible to serve as an interpreter, a person must be a registered voter in the same county as the voter.

In 2017, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals partially upheld a lower court decision in OCA Greater Houston v. Texas invalidating Texas' interpreter statute for violating Section 208 of the Voting Rights Act (VRA), which states that a voter may be "given assistance by a person of the voter's choice." By limiting the voter's choice of an interpreter, the court said the statute "impermissibly narrows the right guaranteed by Section 208." A final, revised district court injunction was issued in 2018, compelling election officials not to enforce Election Code §61.033 and §64.0321.

S.B. 331 brings Texas' interpreter statute in alignment with the court's decision, thus allowing the statute to be enforced and eliminating confusion among elections officials and voters.

S.B. 331 lays out two ways to select an interpreter. The voter may select an interpreter, who may be anyone except a representative of the voter's employer or union (this language tracks Section 208 of the VRA). If the voter does not select an interpreter, an election officer may select a registered voter from the voter's county or an adjacent county to serve. The bill also requires that the interpreter adhere to Chapter 64, Subchapter B, which governs voter assistance.

As proposed, S.B. 331 amends current law relating to eligibility to serve as an interpreter in an election.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

This bill does not expressly grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, institution, or agency.
