AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

S.B. 758 establishes the Food System Security and Resiliency Planning Council to address food system security and planning in Texas.

This legislation is partially in response to the Texas Food Access Study conducted by The University of Texas Rio Grande Valley and the Texas Department of Agriculture. This study was funded via a rider in the General Appropriations Act passed by the 87th Texas Legislature.

This legislation is also in response to various supply chain issues, issues related to various disease outbreaks in animals over the last several years, and other issues that threaten the state's food supply.

The COVID-19 pandemic and subsequent long-lasting supply chain issues resulting from the pandemic, the 2022 baby formula shortage, and the 2023 egg shortage, have shown that the food supply chain in our state and our nation are vulnerable to a variety of disruptions.

To ensure that Texas has a secure and resilient food supply for future generations, S.B. 758 tasks the Food Security and Resiliency Planning Council with reviewing and developing a state food system security plan, which must:

- Ensure sufficient food is available at reasonable cost to ensure public health, safety and welfare of the state; further economic development; and protect the agricultural and natural resources of this state.
- Account for times of severe drought conditions, natural disaster, man-made disaster, and other calamities.
- Include legislative recommendations that are needed or desirable to facilitate the resilience and availability of food supplies in this state.

The Food Security and Resiliency Planning Council established under this legislation would include:

- Seven members appointed by the governor;
- Seven members appointed by the lieutenant governor;
- Six members appointed by the speaker of the house of representatives;
- One member appointed by the Commissioner of Agriculture to represent food banks; and
- Additional nonvoting members representing the Health and Human Services Commission, AgriLife Extension, and the assistant commissioner of agriculture for food and nutrition.

S.B. 758 also establishes the Texas Good System Security and Resiliency Grant Program, which shall award grants to increase food system security and resiliency in this state. Projects must be related to food production, food system security, or food supply resiliency, and have the ability to either impact an individual community or the production of a specific agricultural commodity.

As proposed, S.B. 758 amends current law relating to food system security and resiliency planning.
